

Sylvie Luria
Technology Transfer and Business & Development Manager
Tel Hashomer Medical Research, Infrastructure and Services Ltd.

---

Dr. Luria received her PhD from the Weizmann Institute of Science at Prof. David Givol's, lab, did her Post Doctorate at Stanford Medical School, at Prof. Paul Berg's Lab, and served as a visiting scientist at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology at Prof. Alex Rich's Lab.

Business and Research and Development Experience

From 1998 to 2018, Dr. Luria has been involved in the establishment of more than 42 biomedical startup companies that raised over 220 Million USD in their seed stage.

Dr. Luria serves as a director in 12 companies.

2007-Present - CEO, Technology Transfer Company, Tel Hashomer Ltd.

2004-2007 – Chief Scientific and Technology Officer, Ashkelon Technologies incubator.

1999 – 2004 - STiL BioTechnologies, entrepreneur, Chief Technology Officer and CEO, Director.

1995 -1998 - QBI Ltd. Senior Scientist – innovation of new technologies

Dr. Luria has a unique combination of life science education, exhaustive research in cellular, molecular, genetic, immunology and virology fields coupled with extensive management and business experience in biomedical start-up companies.

Dr Luria has expertise in fund-raising and fostering strategic partnerships with pharmaceutical and biotechnology companies worldwide and has demonstrated capabilities in developing biological products for the BioMedical companies.

Dr. Luria has comprehensive experience in biomedical technology assessment, due diligence, technical representation with strategic planning, management and development of biotechnology companies.