

Tomer Epstein is an experienced executive in the Healthcare industry with vast knowledge and expertise in Medical Device and Digital Health domains with deep understanding of technology KPIs and differentiation in a competitive landscape, as well as business development, sales and marketing. A Medical Engineer by training and an MBA graduate from Tel Aviv University.

Tomer is the director of strategic partnerships at Biobeat, a medical device company, pioneer in wearable remote patient monitoring with AI capabilities for early detection of patient deterioration; aiming to increase global market awareness, expansion and usage.