Identifai-genetics is developing cutting edge bioinformatics technology and solutions, offering an early and comprehensive prenatal screening test for genetic syndromes, using a simple blood test from the mother during the first trimester of the pregnancy. The technology combines advanced statistical algorithms with machine learning models. The implementation of big-data methodologies in genomic bioinformatics demonstrated impressive boosting of performance and accuracy, up to the level of clinical requirements for practical use.