

Tamar Raz, PhD
CEO
Hadasit

CEO, Hadasit, the Technology Transfer Company of Hadassah Medical Organization (HMO) in Jerusalem, Israel.

In previous position served as VP Marketing and Strategy of Ramot, the Technology Transfer Company of Tel Aviv University, and was responsible for the company strategic alliances and marketing activities.

Prior to joining Ramot in 2004, directed the establishment of Allergene, an Israeli start-up company that was founded as an incubator project, and served as its CEO.

Expertise include; commercialization of medical technologies from the academic/ laboratory bench to the industry in order to turn ideas into viable products and services for the benefit of humanity; establishment and management of corporate and academic relationships, animal models research, and pre-clinical development operations; raising funds including investment of venture capital, corporate collaborations, contractual research relationships and government grants.