

David Neustaedter, Vice President, Covidien Ventures

Dave joined Covidien Ventures in 2008 and has led several investments since, including superDimension, and serves on multiple portfolio company boards. He works closely with Covidien's leadership and business development teams and has also been a key architect of Covidien's white space strategy. Prior to Covidien, Dave led business development, strategy and finance for a white space division at Stryker, and previously was a life sciences strategy consultant. Dave received his MBA from Yale, and a Ph.D. in molecular biology from the University of British Columbia, and completed post-doctoral work regarding bone development and neurodegenerative disease at the Mount Sinai School of Medicine.